A brief history

A brief history of Talking flight monitor goes here. This page will exist in the real documentation, but only serves as an example page in a real book. When you edit this page, use markdown to write the text. As you write the page content, the frame below the editor shows your progress in realtime. This avoids the need to save the page, look at it after it is published, then returning to the editor to make changes.

- This is a markdown list. Item 1.
- This is item 2.
  - This is subitem 1.
  - Sub item 2.
- Back to another root item.

We are now out of the list and writing another paragraph. I can surely say that Bookstack's entire process is completely accessible. It is also nice and easy to use. Oh, yes! We can even insert links too Google's website.
